

“TEACHING BIBLICAL DECISION-MAKING”

Joy Williams Bio

Joy Williams, a native Californian, was born and raised in beautiful Orange County. She earned a Bachelor of Arts in Dance from the University of California Santa Barbara and a Master of Arts in Business Administration. With these tools, Joy is fulfilling her dream to teach.

She began her career as a professional dancer performing for television, stage, and film projects. With a focus on technique, she is able to maximize her talent teaching dance in the Los Angeles and El Segundo Unified School Districts as a substitute teacher. Joy also teaches various forms of dance at individual dance studios, specialized dance camps, and arts schools to students of all ages—from 5 years-old to adults.

Now, Joy’s teaching expertise includes abstinence education. Her engaging, straightforward talk brings clarity to the issues of sex and relationships. With candor and class she shares her story to help young people make biblical and informed decisions.
